

ATTENTION.—We have the attention of our readers to the card of Mr. Clegg, of Richmond, Virginia, which appears in our columns this morning. The appeal is prompted by the necessities felt by the congregation of Mr. Clegg's church in Richmond, where the people, unlike our own, have deeply felt the ravage of the recent war. We hope it will be readily and most liberally responded to by the people of our flourishing city.

PEOPLES' MASS CONVENTION.

In response to numerous requests from men of all parties, in various portions of the State, we announce that a grand mass meeting of the friends of President Johnson's restoration policy will be assembled at this city on WEDNESDAY, THE SEVENTH OF NEXT MAY. All the counties of the State are earnestly requested to send delegates to the meeting, irrespective of old party issues or party names, that the people of Kentucky may clearly express their determination to sustain the President against the radical elements of the country.

ELECTION OF POLICEMEN.—An ordinance is pending before the General Council, providing for the election of the police officers, and the repeal of the ordinance which declares all police officers to be appointed by the two Boards of the City Council, and commissioning the Mayor, Presidents of the two Boards, and the Chairman of the Police Committee as a Board for the appointment and control of the police officers, the Mayor reserving the right now exercised of dismissing members of the department of police. This ordinance will probably be decided upon at the session to-morrow night. We trust the new law will be repealed.

The election of police in the new ordinance is safely avoided. It will prove to be of great respects. The cities in the country have found it necessary to constitute a Board of Police Commissioners. Such a body of men, having to perform the special duty of appointing and managing the police officers of the city, would make wiser selections of men to fill these important offices, add greatly to the efficiency of the department, and the safety of the public, in a variety of unpleasant jobs. Many other good reasons for the passage of the new ordinance might be urged. They doubtless will be urged at the meeting to-morrow night. The advocates of this reformation, as well as economical, ordinances should include every member of each Board of the City Council.

Household Job.—On Tuesday night, February 20th, a house was stolen from Dr. G. W. Foeman, of Nelson county, by John Cheshire, a noted character of that region. After taking the house from the State he proceeded to Jeffersonville, Indiana, and induced a man named Charles High to trade with him. He then rode the horse obtained from High to New Albany, where he sold it on the 22d. After the above transaction was concluded to his satisfaction, he rode another horse near Taylorsville, and, on the 24th, reached New Albany. Friday was again in New Albany endeavoring to dispose of him, but was captured by the police of that city. On examination by the city court of Louisville, he was forwarded to Bardstown, where he was held for court in the sum of $500, and is now at large. Such men should feel the full force of the law. We heartily condemn the course adopted in this instance, of releasing such desperadoes as this man. Cheshire has probably been sent to be and think it would tend more toward the preservation of peace in communities and the safety of property, should a more summary course be taken by the constituted authorities.

Newsman.—The following named man, confined in the Military Prison at this post, are to be sent North at 12 o'clock to-day, under the charge of Berndt Major-General Bachelder, Chief Quartermaster Department of Kentucky. Jim Davis (guerrilla), sentenced to be hanged by the neck until dead, committed by the President of the United States to ten years imprisonment at the Albany, N. Y., Penitentiary. No. 2 prisoner, John Clegg, a heavy artilleryman, sentenced to be hanged by the neck until dead (for the murder of Rufus E. Garvin, at Woodsonville, Ky., August last), commanded by the President to ten years imprisonment at the Concord, N. H., Penitentiary; John Burdett, heavy artillery, for shooting a United States colored cavalryman, while on duty at the Post Office, McAdams, sentenced to five years at the Albany, N. Y., Penitentiary.

KENTUCKY REGISTER.—This is the name of a weekly newspaper recently established in the flourishing little town of Richmond, Madison county, Mo. H. Brown & Co.

The first number of the Register is creditable to the ability of its editor and the typographical taste and skill of its publishers. Mr. B. H. Brown, of the Register, is in the city, and will to-day call upon our liberal business men for advertising favors. With real pleasure we commend Mr. B. to our merchants not only as courteous and worthy young gentlemen, but as the representatives of a section where, eventing, they are sure to be a valuable trade.

Burke is going a wide circulation throughout the mountains of the state, and the 15th Congressional District, and will be a most desirable medium for advertisers.

INDUSTRIAL DRAINS.—One of the most valuable improvements now in progress is the deepening and extension of the Southern ditch, beyond Broadway, for the purpose of effectually draining the lands in that vicinity. The able City Engineer, Mr. George Stealey, is now engaged upon the plan necessary to the completion of the work authorized by the City Council. This improvement will not only enhance the value of property in the Southern extremities of the city, but will do more for the health of the people than would a hundred doctors.

Rev. H. G. Clegg, the general agent of the New England Insurance Company, is here in this city, and will call on our citizens for contributions in money and clothing to relieve the suffering poor of Richmond, Virginia. We earnestly commend the cause to the liberality of our community. Contributions and names may be left with the proprietor of the Planters' Hotel, Sixth street, between Main and Market streets.

INQUIRIES.—The Coroner yesterday had an inquest at a house on Gray street, between Preston and Jackson, upon the body of an infant, daughter of Anna Brown, a free woman of color. The jury found that the child died on the 1st of March from natural causes. The law was violated by the burial of the infant on the above premises, and hence its disinterment for inquest.

DROPPING THE PEGON.—This swindling operation seems to have a great many varieties in and about the city. But our politicians manage to drop in money and favors of all kinds at the time. The Charles Gordon tried his best to drop the pegon line at Portland yesterday. His victim had some unscrupulous youth to the tune of about forty dollars. The pigeon-dropper was carried off by officers of Harmon and Black.

Arguing on a Steamer.—W. G. Parsons, who was arrested several days ago upon the charge of defrauding his employer, Messrs. S. Clegg & Co., of the Great Western Steam Bakery, corner Second and Jefferson streets, had an examination in the Police Court yesterday morning, and was discharged uncharged.

FIELD TO EAL.—William Newton and Dick Hunt, two of the men who maliciously stabbed an unknown soldier at Hunt's Garden, on the Preston street road, last Sunday evening, were yesterday required to give $500 each for their appearance before the City Court on Monday next.

The Law—COFFEE B. J. WILSON.—We learn that the remains of this gallant Kentucky soldier, who was killed on the 28th of May, 1861, near Dallas, Ga., are soon to be brought home and interred at Danville.

The Court of Common Pleas, Hon. F. B. Morris, Judge, is still in session. No cases of general interest were tried yesterday. The dockets will not be cleared before the last of next week.

The old signs on the front of Wood's Theater were effaced yesterday, and the pleasant sounding title "Academy of Music" inscribed in their stead.

NEWS SUMMARY.
The Illinois Coast Railroads claim for the transportation of troops during the war was defeated.

J. Green, the "Reformed Gambler," recently arrested on a charge of passing a gloomy counterfeiter, was released.

A rich sum occurred in the First Presbyterian Church of Cincinnati on Monday last at an election of elders. The church, like many others, is divided on the question of secession. The members voted for each other in the usual style so common at all political gatherings. The practical result, William Gentry, was active in pronouncing the interests of his state, and in the course of his speech, he found his son dead, with a fresh wound in his left breast, and his hand dyed with his own gore. As a small self-cocking pistol belonging to the boy was afterward found in the boy's pocket, the supposition is that he was climbing up to the loft the weapon was discharged by accident and caused his death. The coroner held an inquest on the body, and, before pronouncing the pistol, returned a verdict of "death by the hand of some person unknown to the jury." We deeply sympathize with the parents and family of the deceased in this heartrending bereavement.

PEOPLES' MASS CONVENTION.—In response to numerous requests from men of all parties, in various portions of the State, we announce that a grand mass meeting of the friends of President Johnson's restoration policy will be assembled at this city on WEDNESDAY, THE SEVENTH OF NEXT MAY. All the counties of the State are earnestly requested to send delegates to the meeting, irrespective of old party issues or party names, that the people of Kentucky may clearly express their determination to sustain the President against the radical elements of the country.

ELECTION OF POLICEMEN.—An ordinance is pending before the General Council, providing for the appointment and control of the police officers, and the repeal of the ordinance which declares all police officers to be appointed by the two Boards of the City Council, and commissioning the Mayor, Presidents of the two Boards, and the Chairman of the Police Committee as a Board for the appointment and control of the police officers, the Mayor reserving the right now exercised of dismissing members of the department of police. This ordinance will probably be decided upon at the session to-morrow night. We trust the new law will be repealed.

The election of police in the new ordinance is safely avoided. It will prove to be of great respects. The cities in the country have found it necessary to constitute a Board of Police Commissioners. Such a body of men, having to perform the special duty of appointing and managing the police officers of the city, would make wiser selections of men to fill these important offices, add greatly to the efficiency of the department, and the safety of the public, in a variety of unpleasant jobs. Many other good reasons for the passage of the new ordinance might be urged. They doubtless will be urged at the meeting to-morrow night. The advocates of this reformation, as well as economical, ordinances should include every member of each Board of the City Council.

HOUSEHOLD JOB.—On Tuesday night, February 20th, a house was stolen from Dr. G. W. Foeman, of Nelson county, by John Cheshire, a noted character of that region. After taking the house from the State he proceeded to Jeffersonville, Indiana, and induced a man named Charles High to trade with him. He then rode the horse obtained from High to New Albany, where he sold it on the 22d. After the above transaction was concluded to his satisfaction, he rode another horse near Taylorsville, and, on the 24th, reached New Albany. Friday was again in New Albany endeavoring to dispose of him, but was captured by the police of that city. On examination by the city court of Louisville, he was forwarded to Bardstown, where he was held for court in the sum of $500, and is now at large. Such men should feel the full force of the law. We heartily condemn the course adopted in this instance, of releasing such desperadoes as this man. Cheshire has probably been sent to be and think it would tend more toward the preservation of peace in communities and the safety of property, should a more summary course be taken by the constituted authorities.

Newsman.—The following named man, confined in the Military Prison at this post, are to be sent North at 12 o'clock to-day, under the charge of Berndt Major-General Bachelder, Chief Quartermaster Department of Kentucky. Jim Davis (guerrilla), sentenced to be hanged by the neck until dead, committed by the President of the United States to ten years imprisonment at the Albany, N. Y., Penitentiary. No. 2 prisoner, John Clegg, a heavy artilleryman, sentenced to be hanged by the neck until dead (for the murder of Rufus E. Garvin, at Woodsonville, Ky., August last), commanded by the President to ten years imprisonment at the Concord, N. H., Penitentiary; John Burdett, heavy artillery, for shooting a United States colored cavalryman, while on duty at the Post Office, McAdams, sentenced to five years at the Albany, N. Y., Penitentiary.

KENTUCKY REGISTER.—This is the name of a weekly newspaper recently established in the flourishing little town of Richmond, Madison county, Mo. H. Brown & Co.

The first number of the Register is creditable to the ability of its editor and the typographical taste and skill of its publishers. Mr. B. H. Brown, of the Register, is in the city, and will to-day call upon our liberal business men for advertising favors. With real pleasure we commend Mr. B. to our merchants not only as courteous and worthy young gentlemen, but as the representatives of a section where, eventing, they are sure to be a valuable trade.

Burke is going a wide circulation throughout the mountains of the state, and the 15th Congressional District, and will be a most desirable medium for advertisers.

INDUSTRIAL DRAINS.—One of the most valuable improvements now in progress is the deepening and extension of the Southern ditch, beyond Broadway, for the purpose of effectually draining the lands in that vicinity. The able City Engineer, Mr. George Stealey, is now engaged upon the plan necessary to the completion of the work authorized by the City Council. This improvement will not only enhance the value of property in the Southern extremities of the city, but will do more for the health of the people than would a hundred doctors.

Rev. H. G. Clegg, the general agent of the New England Insurance Company, is here in this city, and will call on our citizens for contributions in money and clothing to relieve the suffering poor of Richmond, Virginia. We earnestly commend the cause to the liberality of our community. Contributions and names may be left with the proprietor of the Planters' Hotel, Sixth street, between Main and Market streets.

INQUIRIES.—The Coroner yesterday had an inquest at a house on Gray street, between Preston and Jackson, upon the body of an infant, daughter of Anna Brown, a free woman of color. The jury found that the child died on the 1st of March from natural causes. The law was violated by the burial of the infant on the above premises, and hence its disinterment for inquest.

DROPPING THE PEGON.—This swindling operation seems to have a great many varieties in and about the city. But our politicians manage to drop in money and favors of all kinds at the time. The Charles Gordon tried his best to drop the pegon line at Portland yesterday. His victim had some unscrupulous youth to the tune of about forty dollars. The pigeon-dropper was carried off by officers of Harmon and Black.

Arguing on a Steamer.—W. G. Parsons, who was arrested several days ago upon the charge of defrauding his employer, Messrs. S. Clegg & Co., of the Great Western Steam Bakery, corner Second and Jefferson streets, had an examination in the Police Court yesterday morning, and was discharged uncharged.

FIELD TO EAL.—William Newton and Dick Hunt, two of the men who maliciously stabbed an unknown soldier at Hunt's Garden, on the Preston street road, last Sunday evening, were yesterday required to give $500 each for their appearance before the City Court on Monday next.

The Law—COFFEE B. J. WILSON.—We learn that the remains of this gallant Kentucky soldier, who was killed on the 28th of May, 1861, near Dallas, Ga., are soon to be brought home and interred at Danville.

The Court of Common Pleas, Hon. F. B. Morris, Judge, is still in session. No cases of general interest were tried yesterday. The dockets will not be cleared before the last of next week.

The old signs on the front of Wood's Theater were effaced yesterday, and the pleasant sounding title "Academy of Music" inscribed in their stead.

DEFENDING DEATH BY ACCIDENTAL SHOT.—Benjamin Smith, aged twenty years, of Mr. Charles W. Smith, upholsterer, Marshall street, between Gray and Hancock, came to his death about four o'clock yesterday evening by the accidental discharge of a self-cocking pistol of his own hands. The facts of this melancholy accident are that Mr. Smith, at the hour above stated, had occasion to visit his stable in search of a pet chicken, and while feeding along the crevices of the stable, near the feed trough, he came in contact with a human face. His first impulse was to shoot, but, in his panic, he found his son dead, with a fresh wound in his left breast, and his hand dyed with his own gore. As a small self-cocking pistol belonging to the boy was afterward found in the boy's pocket, the supposition is that he was climbing up to the loft the weapon was discharged by accident and caused his death. The coroner held an inquest on the body, and while feeling along the crevices of the stable, near the feed trough, he came in contact with a human face. His first impulse was to shoot, but, in his panic, he found his son dead, with a fresh wound in his left breast, and his hand dyed with his own gore. As a small self-cocking pistol belonging to the boy was afterward found in the boy's pocket, the supposition is that he was climbing up to the loft the weapon was discharged by accident and caused his death. The coroner held an inquest on the body, and while feeling along the crevices of the stable, near the feed trough, he came in contact with a human face. His first impulse was to shoot, but, in his panic, he found his son dead, with a fresh wound in his left breast, and his hand dyed with his own gore. As a small self-cocking pistol belonging to the boy was afterward found in the boy's pocket, the supposition is that he was climbing up to the loft the weapon was discharged by accident and caused his death. The coroner held an inquest on the body, and while feeling along the crevices of the stable, near the feed trough, he came in contact with a human face. His first impulse was to shoot, but, in his panic, he found his son dead, with a fresh wound in his left breast, and his hand dyed with his own gore. As a small self-cocking pistol belonging to the boy was afterward found in the boy's pocket, the supposition is that he was climbing up to the loft the weapon was discharged by accident and caused his death. The coroner held an inquest on the body, and while feeling along the crevices of the stable, near the feed trough, he came in contact with a human face. His first impulse was to shoot, but, in his panic, he found his son dead, with a fresh wound in his left breast, and his hand dyed with his own gore. As a small self-cocking pistol belonging to the boy was afterward found in the boy's pocket, the supposition is that he was climbing up to the loft the weapon was discharged by accident and caused his death. The coroner held an inquest on the body, and while feeling along the crevices of the stable, near the feed trough, he came in contact with a human face. His first impulse was to shoot, but, in his panic, he found his son dead, with a fresh wound in his left breast, and his hand dyed with his own gore. As a small self-cocking pistol belonging to the boy was afterward found in the boy's pocket, the supposition is that he was climbing up to the loft the weapon was discharged by accident and caused his death. The coroner held an inquest on the body, and while feeling along the crevices of the stable, near the feed trough, he came in contact with a human face. His first impulse was to shoot, but, in his panic, he found his son dead, with a fresh wound in his left breast, and his hand dyed with his own gore. As a small self-cocking pistol belonging to the boy was afterward found in the boy's pocket, the supposition is that he was climbing up to the loft the weapon was discharged by accident and caused his death. The coroner held an inquest on the body, and while feeling along the crevices of the stable, near the feed trough, he came in contact with a human face. His first impulse was to shoot, but, in his panic, he found his son dead, with a fresh wound in his left breast, and his hand dyed with his own gore. As a small self-cocking pistol belonging to the boy was afterward found in the boy's pocket, the supposition is that he was climbing up to the loft the weapon was discharged by accident and caused his death. The coroner held an inquest on the body, and while feeling along the crevices of the stable, near the feed trough, he came in contact with a human face. His first impulse was to shoot, but, in his panic, he found his son dead, with a fresh wound in his left breast, and his hand dyed with his own gore. As a small self-cocking pistol belonging to the boy was afterward found in the boy's pocket, the supposition is that he was climbing up to the loft the weapon was discharged by accident and caused his death. The coroner held an inquest on the body, and while feeling along the crevices of the stable, near the feed trough, he came in contact with a human face. His first impulse was to shoot, but, in his panic, he found his son dead, with a fresh wound in his left breast, and his hand dyed with his own gore. As a small self-cocking pistol belonging to the boy was afterward found in the boy's pocket, the supposition is that he was climbing up to the loft the weapon was discharged by accident and caused his death. The coroner held an inquest on the body, and while feeling along the crevices of the stable, near the feed trough, he came in contact with a human face. His first impulse was to shoot, but, in his panic, he found his son dead, with a fresh wound in his left breast, and his hand dyed with his own gore. As a small self-cocking pistol belonging to the boy was afterward found in the boy's pocket, the supposition is that he was climbing up to the loft the weapon was discharged by accident and caused his death. The coroner held an inquest on the body, and while feeling along the crevices of the stable, near the feed trough, he came in contact with a human face. His first impulse was to shoot, but, in his panic, he found his son dead, with a fresh wound in his left breast, and his hand dyed with his own gore. As a small self-cocking pistol belonging to the boy was afterward found in the boy's pocket, the supposition is that he was climbing up to the loft the weapon was discharged by accident and caused his death. The coroner held an inquest on the body, and while feeling along the crevices of the stable, near the feed trough, he came in contact with a human face. His first impulse was to shoot, but, in his panic, he found his son dead, with a fresh wound in his left breast, and his hand dyed with his own gore. As a small self-cocking pistol belonging to the boy was afterward found in the boy's pocket, the supposition is that he was climbing up to the loft the weapon was discharged by accident and caused his death. The coroner held an inquest on the body, and while feeling along the crevices of the stable, near the feed trough, he came in contact with a human face. His first impulse was to shoot, but, in his panic, he found his son dead, with a fresh wound in his left breast, and his hand dyed with his own gore. As a small self-cocking pistol belonging to the boy was afterward found in the boy's pocket, the supposition is that he was climbing up to the loft the weapon was discharged by accident and caused his death. The coroner held an inquest on the body, and while feeling along the crevices of the stable, near the feed trough, he came in contact with a human face. His first impulse was to shoot, but, in his panic, he found his son dead, with a fresh wound in his left breast, and his hand dyed with his own gore. As a small self-cocking pistol belonging to the boy was afterward found in the boy's pocket, the supposition is that he was climbing up to the loft the weapon was discharged by accident and caused his death. The coroner held an inquest on the body, and while feeling along the crevices of the stable, near the feed trough, he came in contact with a human face. His first impulse was to shoot, but, in his panic, he found his son dead, with a fresh wound in his left breast, and his hand dyed with his own gore. As a small self-cocking pistol belonging to the boy was afterward found in the boy's pocket, the supposition is that he was climbing up to the loft the weapon was discharged by accident and caused his death. The coroner held an inquest on the body, and while feeling along the crevices of the stable, near the feed trough, he came in contact with a human face. His first impulse was to shoot, but, in his panic, he found his son dead, with a fresh wound in his left breast, and his hand dyed with his own gore. As a small self-cocking pistol belonging to the boy was afterward found in the boy's pocket, the supposition is that he was climbing up to the loft the weapon was discharged by accident and caused his death. The coroner held an inquest on the body, and while feeling along the crevices of the stable, near the feed trough, he came in contact with a human face. His first impulse was to shoot, but, in his panic, he found his son dead, with a fresh wound in his left breast, and his hand dyed with his own gore. As a small self-cocking pistol belonging to the boy was afterward found in the boy's pocket, the supposition is that he was climbing up to the loft the weapon was discharged by accident and caused his death. The coroner held an inquest on the body, and while feeling along the crevices of the stable, near the feed trough, he came in contact with a human face. His first impulse was to shoot, but, in his panic, he found his son dead, with a fresh wound in his left breast, and his hand dyed with his own gore. As a small self-cocking pistol belonging to the boy was afterward found in the boy's pocket, the supposition is that he was climbing up to the loft the weapon was discharged by accident and caused his death. The coroner held an inquest on the body, and while feeling along the crevices of the stable, near the feed trough, he came in contact with a human face. His first impulse was to shoot, but, in his panic, he found his son dead, with a fresh wound in his left breast, and his hand dyed with his own gore. As a small self-cocking pistol belonging to the boy was afterward found in the boy's pocket, the supposition is that he was climbing up to the loft the weapon was discharged by accident and caused his death. The coroner held an inquest on the body, and while feeling along the crevices of the stable, near the feed trough, he came in contact with a human face. His first impulse was to shoot, but, in his panic, he found his son dead, with a fresh wound in his left breast, and his hand dyed with his own gore. As a small self-cocking pistol belonging to the boy was afterward found in the boy's pocket, the supposition is that he was climbing up to the loft the weapon was discharged by accident and caused his death. The coroner held an inquest on the body, and while feeling along the crevices of the stable, near the feed trough, he came in contact with a human face. His first impulse was to shoot, but, in his panic, he found his son dead, with a fresh wound in his left breast, and his hand dyed with his own gore. As a small self-cocking pistol belonging to the boy was afterward found in the boy's pocket, the supposition is that he was climbing up to the loft the weapon was discharged by accident and caused his death. The coroner held an inquest on the body, and while feeling along the crevices of the stable, near the feed trough, he came in contact with a human face. His first

RAILROADS.

Louisville and Nashville Railroad.

FREIGHT DEPARTMENT.

Longville, Feb. 27, 1862.

To Shippers:

ON ACCOUNT OF THE CONTINUED BLOCKADE

ON THE WESTERN AND ATLANTIC R. R., WE CAN NOT GUARANTEE THE DELIVERY OF YOUR FREIGHTS ON TIME, AND UNTIL FURTHER NOTICE, THERE IS NO OBSTRUCTION TO SHIPMENTS TO CHATSWOOD, N. C.

F. S. VAN ALSTINE,
Freight Agent.

For our

Speed! Comfort! Safety!

OLD RELIABLE

LITTLE MIAMI

RAILROAD

VIA COLUMBUS.

SHORTEST AND QUICKEST ROUTE

FROM CINCINNATI TO ALL THE EASTERN CITIES, TOWNS, AND STATIONS.

THE LITTLE MIAMI IS THE ONLY LINE RUNNING

LEADING EXPRESS TRAINS FROM CINCINNATI TO THE EAST.

LEADING EXPRESS TRAINS FROM CHATSWOOD, N. C., TO THE WESTERN AND ATLANTIC R. R.

AND PASSENGERS HAVE TIME FOR MEALS,

AND TIME FOR SLEEP.

From 8 A. M. to 10 P. M.

From 8 A. M.